Classical Numismatic Review

Volume LX, No. 3

Fall 2015

This past month, the numismatic staff of CNG had the pleasure of attending the XV International Numismatic Congress, a gathering of numismatic scholars, dealers, collectors, and journalists from around the world. Countless talks were given by the foremost researchers in the field, enlightening us on everything from obscure areas of Greek coinage to equally obscure areas of 18th century medals. While dealers and academics might at first seem to be two groups who harbor some animosity towards each other, the camaraderie at the Congress was exceptional and all parties were united by their shared passion for numismatics. This event highlights what is to me one of the most unique aspects of our business – our remarkable dedication to numismatic scholarship. We return eager to implement this newly acquired knowledge in the upcoming catalogs and sales.

Bill Dalzell

The last six weeks have been quite busy, and the next six look just as active as we work towards printer deadlines for our January 2016 Triton XIX sale.

We want to thank all of you who helped make CNG 100 a successful auction. With over 1400 bidders from all over the world, this milestone sale hammered at $6.8 million on a presale estimate of $4.5 million, with a healthy 95% of lots sold. Despite some industry talk about market softness, we are in a period of robust prices when interesting material is available. Looking at results from sales in Europe and the United States over the last two weeks we see strong results (despite the fact that too many coins were on offer in too short a period of time).

The current Review reflects what we have been able to purchase over the last few months. David has assembled a varied offering of British, and we are excited to be able to offer an important group of Seleukid coins from the “Friend of a Scholar Collection”. As provenance has become more highly valued in recent years, this collection, put together in past decades, presents an attractive opportunity for the Seleukid or Hellenistic specialist. It is our hope that this collection can be sold intact, as it reflects one collector’s patient dedication to scholarship and connoisseurship in putting this remarkable group together.

On a final note, it was a pleasure seeing many of you in Taormina in late September at the XV International Numismatic Congress. This gathering, held every six years, is refreshing as it brings together in a relaxed setting so many people with a shared love of numismatics. For those of you who have not previously attended one of these events, we highly recommend the next congress, which will be held in Warsaw in 2021.

A Brief History of Classical Numismatic Group, Inc. On the Occasion of CNG's Auction 100

VICTOR ENGLAND
Ltd.

Original sign for Victor England, Ltd.

The beginnings of Classical Numismatic Group can be traced back to the spring of 1975, when Victor England graduated from the University of Denver and decided to enter the rare coin business. Victor first pursued the path of dealing in United States, ancient, and world coins, but after attending a coin show in Biloxi, Mississippi, and realizing that his merchandise was about the same as every other dealer's, he decided to switch his focus entirely to ancient, medieval, and world coinage. He decided it was more fun to sell history than to argue about the nuances of grading U.S. coins. Victor England Ltd. was started in Denver, Colorado out of an office on South University Boulevard, not far from his alma mater.

Victor almost immediately began publishing fixed price lists and mail bid auction sales, and by the time he published Volume II, No. 5, he had announced his relocation to San Francisco, California. Business was conducted out of Suite 717, at 500 Sansome Street, and soon Victor hired his first numismatic employee, Stephen M. Huston. After a crippling burglary in February of 1980 at the Sansome street office, Victor again relocated back to Denver. He reestablished his business in Denver during the summer of 1980, and would remain in the Denver area until the fall of 1983, when he decided to once again relocate, this time to Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, where his parents still lived and where Victor had attended high school before he left for the University of Denver back in 1971. Victor married in 1983, and he and Cathy decided that Lancaster County was the place to start their family.

San Francisco, CA office (1978-1980)

Quarryville, PA office (1983-1993)

Victor purchased a home in the rural community of Quarryville, Pennsylvania, which would become the base of his operations for the next ten years. In 1986, Victor decided to enter the competitive world of coin auctions. To that end, he hired Karen L. Zander to be his office manager, and formed Classical Numismatic Auctions, Ltd., which conducted its first auction on 1 May 1987 in New York City at the Sheraton Center Hotel & Towers, familiar to many as the home of the New York International Numismatic Convention since the early 1970s. The auctioneer for the first sale was Herbert J. Kreindler, a noted dealer in ancient coins, and this relationship with Herb has continued to this day. Other important influences on Victor's early career were Charles H. Wolfe, Sr., John Barton (Owl Ltd.), Thomas P. McKenna, and Joel Malter.

Victor decided he needed help to continue the auction sales, and Kerry K. Wetterstrom joined the firm in time for the next sale held on 7 November 1987, this time in conjunction with the Grand Central Coin Convention, held across the street from the Sheraton at the Omni Park Hotel. As the number of auctions increased, both public and mail bid only sales (yes, Virginia, this was before the Internet), additional employees were added: first Peter L. Lampinen in late 1989, and then Dawn Ahlgren in mid 1990.

The next step in the evolution of what was to become CNG started with conversations at several coin shows in the late 1980s between Victor and Eric J. McFadden. Eric was based in Southern California; he had studied Classics at Pomona College and Oxford University (where he was president of the Oxford University Numismatic Society), and he had worked as a volunteer at the Getty Museum organizing the museum's coin collection.

Eric then worked at Numismatic Fine Arts, Inc. in the late 1970's and early 1980s. He left NFA to obtain his law degree from Harvard Law School, where he paid his expenses by dealing part-time in ancient coins. Eric continued to deal in ancient coins during his four years as an attorney, and eventually realized that he preferred the ancient coin field to a law career. In 1990, Victor and Eric decided to join forces as partners.

At this point, the company of Victor England Ltd. ceased to exist, and a new corporation was formed: Classical Numismatic Group with offices in Quarryville, Pennsylvania and Beverly Hills, California. Eric's tenure in Beverly Hills was to be short-lived, however, as a new opportunity presented itself during COINEX, the annual London coin fair, in the autumn of 1990. An agreement was made whereby CNG purchased the rights to the numismatic business of the venerable London firm, B.A. Seaby Ltd.

Effective in March of 1991, CNG took over the daily coin operations of Seaby, which at that time was located at 7 Davies Street just off Berkeley Square. It was soon decided that Eric would close the Beverly Hills office and relocate to London in order to manage the Seaby coin business for CNG.

The purchase of Seaby Coins gave CNG a foothold in the European market, and Eric helped to establish Seaby/CNG as one of the leading firms in ancient, British, and world coinages in London. Eric will be observing his 25th year of managing CNG's London operations in 2016.

Back stateside, CNG's U.S. business continued to grow, which prompted a move from the sleepy village of Quarryville to the larger community of Lancaster, Pennsylvania. A 19th century farmhouse was purchased in 1993, renovated, and the offices were moved there in January of 1994. Cathy England had joined the firm full-time in 1991, and the numismatic staff grew with the addition of Barry P. Murphy in January of 1992, and more office space (and bookshelf space!) was needed.

Lancaster, PA office (1994-2008)

As the firm continued to grow in the 1990s, CNG continued hiring and became a training ground for classical numismatists. As various staff members would leave to pursue other opportunities, others stepped in, and today, after 25 years since its founding, Classical Numismatic Group's list of alumni is impressive.

In alphabetical order, the following numismatists have worked for the firm in the U.S.: Dr. Lawrence A. Adams, Benjamin R. Bell, Jeremy Bostwick, William A. Dalzell, A.J. Gatlin, Peter Lampinen, John C. Lavender, Ken McDevitt, David Michaels, Barry Murphy, Bradley Nelson, William B. Porter, Jeff Rill, Wayne G. Sayles, Col. Ted Schmidt, Scott VanHorn, Kerry Wetterstrom, and W. Jeffrey Winter. In the London office, the list includes: David Guest, Eugene Paunov, Bridget Roe, Julia Trocmé-Latter, Max Tursi, and Italo Vecchi. Various numismatists have served as interns at CNG, including William A. Dalzell, Leif Davisson, Sam Spiegel, and Alex Steinmetz.

Victor England, Bill Porter, Cathy England, Karen Zander, Benjamin Bell, Bradley Nelson, Barry Murphy, Dawn Ahlgren (Spring 2002)

The list of experts that CNG has consulted over the years is also impressive and includes (in alphabetical order): BCD, Catharine C. Lorber, William Metcalf, Wayne Moore, Y.T. Necessian, Fred B. Shore, Dr. Gordon A. Singer, John Spring, Karl Stephens, David Vagi, and William B. Warden, Jr. CNG has conducted many joint auctions over the years with other leading firms, including: Harlan J. Berk, Ltd., Freeman & Sear, Gitbud & Naumann, Fritz Rudolf Künker GmbH & Co KG, Numismatica Ars Classica (NAC) AG, Nomos AG, St. James's Auctions (Stephen Fenton), Karl Stephens, and M. Louis Teller & Company.

Over the years, CNG has been privileged to handle the sale of many important private collections, as well as museum consignments from institutions such as the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the Phoenix Art Museum, the American Numismatic Society, the MoneyMuseum (Zürich), the Royal Ontario Museum, and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

As the Internet and Digital Age evolved, CNG has taken full advantage of these new tools, and now has a major presence on the Internet through its website www.cngcoins.com. Today, in addition to our three printed auction catalogues per year, CNG has conducted over 350 biweekly electronic auctions on our website. Utilizing state-of-the-art digital photography, and the talents of our in-house photographers, Travis Markel and Jessica Garloff, and our research staff, CNG maintains a digital archive on its website under the "RESEARCH" banner, with access to our internal search engine including over 240,000 items we have sold since we began archiving material on the web in 2000. This part of the site is freely accessible to everyone (without registration), and is used by collectors, dealers, and academics from around the world.

Victor England, Cathy England, Bradley Nelson, Bill Dalzell, Jeremy Bostwick, Dawn Ahlgren, Jeff Rill, Ken McDevitt, Dale Tatro, Scott VanHorn, Karen Zander, A.J. Gatlin, Jessica Garloff, Travis Markel (December 2010)

Over the last 25 years, CNG has also been active in the broader advancement of numismatics. CNG has published over 25 numismatic books, ranging from specialist studies to practical guides, including titles that have won major awards and several that are recognized as the standard references in their fields. In the U.S., CNG has worked with the American Numismatic Society in various endeavors, and in 2010 the ANS presented Victor with the ANS Trustees' Award and made him the honoree at the annual ANS gala. In 2015, the American Numismatic Association presented Victor with the Harry J. Forman Dealer of the Year Award.

In the U.K., CNG has established the CNG Roman and Byzantine Fund, administered through the Royal Numismatic Society, to provide grants for the study of Roman and Byzantine Numismatics, and CNG sponsors the annual CNG Lecture at Oxford's Ashmolean Museum. Eric has been particularly active in the International Association of Professional Numismatists (IAPN), the international numismatic trade organization; he has served as president of the IAPN and continues to serve as the president of the IAPN's authentication bureau, the International Bureau for the Suppression of Counterfeit Coins (IBSCC).

By 2008, CNG was once more in need of larger office quarters, so a new building was purchased, remodeled, and occupied by the summer. In London, Seaby/CNG relocated in the fall of 2014 from its long-time space on Old Bond Street to a new location at 20 Bloomsbury Street, near the British Museum.

Today, as CNG celebrates 40 years in the numismatic trade (Victor England Ltd. – 1975 to 1990; CNG Inc. – 1990 to date), the company continues to grow and prosper. Victor England continues to manage the Lancaster office while Eric McFadden runs the office in London. Working with them is a team of experienced professional numismatists: Bradley Nelson—Senior Numismatist, Scott VanHorn, Jeff Rill, Ken McDevitt, Jeremy Bostwick, Bill Dalzell, and Kerry Wetterstrom in Lancaster and David Guest in London. Accounting, shipping, and general operations are handled by Cathy England, Karen Zander, Dawn Ahlgren, and Dale Tatro in Lancaster. Alexandra Spyra and Tina Jordan keep the London office running smoothly. CNG's Creative Arts Staff consists of Travis Markel and Jessica Garloff. CNG now sells over 20,000 coins annually, and over the past 10 years, we have sold more than $200 million dollars worth of coins at auction and set numerous price records.

Superb EF, small metal flaw on cheek. $495

In his 1988 article on Rhodian imitations, R. Ashton has argued persuasively that this coinage was struck by Perseus to pay Cretan mercenaries serving in his army (see "A Series of Pseudo-Rhodian Drachms from Mainland Greece," NC 1988, pp. 29-30). The Rhodian coinage circulated on Crete, where it was a familiar and trusted currency for the Cretans, and it is likely that they would have required payment in that form (see also R. Ashton, SM 146 [May 1987], p. 34).

402962. KINGS of PAEONIA. Patraos. Circa 335-315 BC. AR Tetradrachm (25mm, 12.50 g, 9h). Astibos or Damastion mint. 418059. DYNASTS of LYCIA. Vekhssere II. Circa 410/00-390/80 BC. AR Third Stater (17mm, 2.85 g, 10h). Zagaba mint. Lion scalp facing / Head of Athena facing slightly left, wearing triple-crested Attic helmet; ZAGABAH (in Lycian) to left; all within incuse circle. Falghera –; Reuter 128; Podalia 14 corr. (A2/P2; Zagaba not a dynast) = Boston MFA Supp. 220 = Hesss-Leu (2 April 1958), lot 226; SNG Copenhagen Supp. 469 var. (monogram to right). Good VF, die break at early stage on reverse. Exceptional style. $2500

There has been long debate about whether Zagaba was a place or a person, but more recent research has conclusively shown that it is, in fact, a city, not a dynast (cf. A.G. Keen, Dynastic Lycia: A Political History of the Lycians & Their Relations with Foreign Powers, c. 545-362 BC [Leiden: Brill, 1998], pp. 54–5 and 109). The absence of a dynast's name here suggests that this issue might be a civic, rather than dynastic (cf. Keen, op cit., p. 54, and Reuter 128 note). Coins with similar types as this issue, however, are known in the name of Vekhssere II (cf. Falghera 186 and Podalia 1–7).

The obverse portrait has sometimes been identified as the famous chief of the Arverni, Vercingetorix, whom Julius Caesar captured in 52 BC in Alesia. It is difficult to imagine anyone placing such a dramatic portrait of a defeated foe on their coinage, but it is clear from surviving sources of the period that the Romans had a good deal of respect for the Gauls as honorable warriors. Crawford and Sear believe this identification is unlikely, but the large, distinctive, and carefully engraved head suggests the die cutter worked with an eye toward creating an individualized portrait, rather than a stylized personification of a Gaul. The reverse is also of particular historical interest, in that it depicts the manner in which chariots were used in Celtic Gaul, and perhaps in Britain as well.

During the War of the Spanish Succession, Grand Alliance forces of the English, Dutch, and Austrians laid siege to the city of Lille for nearly three months. Over the course of the siege, the French commander, Marshall Boufflers, managed to exact over sixteen thousand casualties on his enemy. The battle was also the site of the famous affaire des poudres, in which the Chevalier de Luxembourg broke through the Alliance lines to deliver forty-thousand tons of much needed gunpowder to the beleaguered French defenders.

Hartlebury Castle, the residence of the Bishop of Worcester, was fortified and held by Royalist supporters during the English Civil War. Though prepared for a lengthy siege, the castle surrendered without a single shot fired after being besieged by Colonel Thomas Morgan for only two days. Morgan ordered fortifications to be slighted. The residence was later sold to a private citizen by the Parliamentary Commissioners.

The association of disease with evil and the employment of the laying-on of hands to cure that disease/evil has been a part of human belief since at least the time of Jesus and the miracles associated with him. Among the numerous diseases that existed in medieval and modern Europe, one of the most heinous and virulent was the so-called morbium regis, or, as it was known in French, mal de roi – the King's Evil. A form of scrofula, a tubercular infection of the lymph nodes that left untreated turned into suppurating sores. While various home remedies were known, the one perceived certain cure was the laying-on of hands by the king in his role as the anointed representative of Christ. Beginning in France under Robert II (996-1017) and in England under Edward the Confessor (1042-1066), this ritual became an important part of kingship and also a crucial test of royal legitimacy. So popular did the ritual become that by the seventeenth century (under Edward the Confessor only one touch by him was ever recorded) a process was instituted in order to keep the crowds of sufferers at a manageable number.

As a part of the ritual, the afflicted would receive a coin as alms. Because of its association with this ritual, the coin would be kept to act as a talisman for the sufferer. By the time of Edward IV, the coin used was a gold denomination, the angel, that was perfectly suited for the ceremony as it bore a depiction of the Archangel Michael slaying the Dragon on the obverse and the royal ship-of-state – an allusion to the monarch – on the reverse. Under Henry VII (1485-1509), the practice was ritualized into a Divine Service and the coins themselves were a central part of the ceremony, retaining their relative intrinsic purity. Having first been threaded with a ribbon for suspension, the coin would be passed over the affected areas by the monarch, who would sometimes make the sign of the cross with the coin as well. Even after England had become a Protestant country, Queen Elizabeth I (1558-1603) continued to do the latter.

Under the Stuarts, the ceremony took on special significance since they viewed it as an important component of their increasingly absolutist view of the divine right of kingship. While James I (1603-1625), owing to his Protestant background and the lack of such a ritual in Scotland, initially balked at performing the ritual, he soon acquiesced, although he removed everything in the ritual that remotely smacked of papism and invoked God in the actual healing. Under James I and Charles I (1625-1649), the coin itself underwent significant design changes to the reverse, including under Charles the replacement of the traditional legend with a more ironic one – AMOR POPVLI PRAESIDIUM REGIS (The People's Love is the King's Safeguard). Like his father, Charles I performed the ceremony only on Easter and Michaelmas, as well as on Progresses. In 1633, a few days after his Scottish Coronation, Charles touched about 100 people. To commemorate this event, special angels designed and struck by Nicholas Briot were used. During his captivity following the end of the Civil War, Charles continued to perform touchings; the coins and ribbons were supplied by those wanting to be touched.

Under the Commonwealth, both the denomination and the ceremony ceased. When the ritual was reintroduced during the Restoration of Charles II (1660-1685) and his successors, a gold medalet, now specifically a touch-piece, was created to replace the angel. Designed solely for the touching ceremony and not meant to be used as currency, this medalet continued to employ the designs of the former angel (although now the ship was now modernized by depicting the Sovereign of the Seas accompanied by the legend SOLI DEO GLORIA (Alone to God the glory). The last reigning monarch to touch on British soil was Anne (1702-1714), who did so three months before her death. The Hanoverians refused to participate at all and the ritual died out in England, although in France it did so until the execution of Louis XVI (1774-1793), and was continued by the Stuart Pretenders until the death of Cardinal Henry Benedict Stuart, Henry IX to the Jacobites, in 1807.

“Friend of a Scholar” Collection Seleukid Empire

99 Coins
Rarity and Quality

The Seleukid Coins from the “Friend of a Scholar” Collection

Classical Numismatic Group is pleased to present the Seleukid coins from the “Friend of a Scholar” collection intact, and as a single lot, containing 99 coins with an emphasis on great rarity and quality. The formation of the “Friend” Seleukid collection began in September of 1981, when he purchased a large group of Seleukid coinage from the distinguished Parisian firm of Maison Platt. Michel Kampmann of Maison Platt was instrumental in guiding our collector with his numismatic purchases, and acted as his main advisor for many years.

The numismatic mentor of our “Friend” was Georges Le Rider, the great Hellenistic scholar, and former director of the Cabinet des Médailles at the Bibliothèque Nationale in Paris, as well as the Deputy Director of the Bibliothèque Nationale itself from 1975-1981. As a result, the “Friend of a Scholar” collection is included in many of Le Rider’s die studies as well as those of other important Seleukid scholars.

Coins were added to the “Friend” Seleukid collection primarily through auction purchases, where he was active from the 1980s through the first decade of this century, from such auction houses as Baldwin’s, Bank Leu, Harlan J. Berk, Ltd., Claude Burgan, Classical Numismatic Group, Inc., Giessener Münzhandlung (Gorny & Mosch), Münzen und Medaillen AG, Münzen und Medaillen GmbH, Numismatica Ars Classica NAC AG, Numismatic Fine Arts, Inc., Numismatica Genevensis SA, Numismatik Lanz München, Dr. Busso Peus Nachf., and Jean Vinchon.

An emphasis was placed on pedigreed and well-provenanced coins, and some of the most important collections since the late 19th century are represented, including the Abramowitz Family Collection, Burton Y. Berry, Major-General Haughton, Arthur Houghton, Nelson Bunker Hunt, Count Alessandro Magnaguti, Walter Niggeler, and the John Ward Collection (Metropolitan Museum of Art).

With only 99 coins, almost every one is a highlight, but some of the more important coins in this collection are the Seleukos I tetradrachm with the horned horse head on the obverse and standing elephant on the reverse (SC 1.1), a choice Susa mint “Hero and trophy” tetradrachm (SC 173.11), and the discovery coin for the Seleukos I tetradrachm with Herakles/Alexander the Great on horseback types (SC 203). A tetradrachm of Antiochos I featuring a horned and diademed head of Seleukos I on the obverse and a horned horse’s head on the reverse (SC 322) is also included in the “Friend” collection.

Tetradrachms of Antiochos II Theos (SC 607a and SC 501), Antiochos Hierax (SC 875.3 var. and SC 907c), Antiochos III Megas (SC 1067), Seleukos IV (SC 1329.2b), and Antiochos, son of Seleukos IV (SC 1369a and SC 1370 [drachm]) are featured in the collection. Two of the more important and artistic highlights are the issues of Antiochos IV that feature beautifully engraved portraits of Zeus and Apollo on the obverse (SC 1398 and SC 1401). Another masterfully engraved rendition of Zeus is featured on a tetradrachm of Alexander I Balas (SC 1798).

A tetradrachm of Alexander I Balas and Kleopatra Thea from the Ptolemaï’s mint (SC 1841) is included in the collection, as is a Tarsos mint tetradrachm of Antiochos VI Dionysos with a Sandan on altar reverse (SC 1996)—one of only two known. The usurper Tryphon is represented by two tetradrachms (SC 2037 and SC 2046.2c) and a drachm (SC 2033d), and Demetrios II Nikator’s coinage is highlighted by a tetradrachm from the Tarsos mint (SC 2156.3).

One of the great rarities in the Seleukid series is the silver tetradrachm of Kleopatra Thea from her brief sole reign (SC 2258.2), which is represented by a choice example that first appeared in the Spink COINEX 2003 sale. A joint rule tetradrachm of Kleopatra Thea and her son Antiochos VIII from the Damaskos mint is also included (SC 2267.1 var.). A Tarsos mint Sandan on altar tetradrachm for Antiochos VIII is featured (SC 2288.1b), as is a Damaskos tetradrachm of Antiochos IX Kyzikenos (SC 2381.1). An extremely rare tetradrachm issued for Seleukos VI at the Seleukeia on the Kalykadnos mint (SC 2405.8) is part of the “Friend” collection, as is the unique joint rule tetradrachm of Antiochos XI and his brother Philip I Philadelphos (SC 2438).

Finally, the “Friend of a Scholar Collection” of Seleukid coinage includes important gold staters for Antiochos I Soter (SC 435.3), Antiochos II Theos (SC 617), Seleukos II Kallinikos (SC 701 and SC 786), Demetrios I Soter (SC 1724—unique stater from the Ekbatana mint), and the unique stater of Alexander II Zabinas from Antioch on the Orontes (SC 2216).

One of the great rarities in the Seleukid series, this coin was minted by Philetairos as part of a commemorative coinage honoring his new sovereign after the Battle of Corupedion in 281 BC. The types were chosen particularly for Seleukos—a horned horse's head—and an elephant, which may symbolize Seleukos' reconquest of India circa 305 BC, and also the role of the elephant corps at Corupedion.

Seleukos I Nikator. 312-281 BC. AR Tetradrachm (27mm, 16.84 g, 9h). In the types of Alexander III of Macedon. Seleukeia on the Tigris mint I. Struck circa 300-281 BC. ### The First of the Four Known: Alexander Riding Boukephalos

Seleukos I Nikator. 312-281 BC. AR Tetradrachm (27mm, 17.09 g, 5h). Ekbatana mint. Struck circa 295 BC. Head of Herakles right, wearing lion skin / ΒΑΣΙΛΕΥΣ ΣΕΛΕΥΚΟΥ in exergue, Alexander the Great, with Dionysiac attributes, wearing helmet adorned with bull's ear and horns, panther skin on shoulders, riding Boukephalos right; across lower field, from left to right, ΞΩ, ⚓, and ⚓. SC 203 (this coin cited and illustrated); HGC 9, 24 (this coin illustrated); A. Houghton and A. Stewart, "The Equestrian Portrait of Alexander the Great on a New Tetradrachm of Seleukos I" in SNR 78 (1999), pl. 5, 1 (this coin). Good VF, toned, a few light marks and scratches. Extremely rare, one of only four known, and the discovery coin.

Ex Numismatica Ars Classica II (29 April 1998), lot 110.

This extraordinary coin comes from a series that also includes some very rare drachms and hemidrachms of the same type. The identification of the figure on the reverse is controversial: Is it Dionysos the Conqueror? Is it Alexander with attributes of Dionysos? Is it Seleukos with attributes of Alexander and Dionysos? Or is it a general hero with attributes of all of them? Houghton and Stewart made a very good case for it being Alexander, based on the Dionysiac symbolism used for the portrait of Alexander on the victory coinage struck in Susa ten years earlier. On this coin we can see that the saddle cloth is an animal skin (the tail can be made out waving behind the rider); presumably that of a panther. The horns of the horse immediately recall Alexander's mount, the famous Boukephalos, thus, seemingly making the identification of the rider certain. Since the publication of 1999, however, Houghton seems to have had second thoughts, and wonders that the rider may well be Seleukos. This is unlikely. The fact that this issue was so limited in size argues against the introduction of a new iconographic representation of Seleukos, rather than a reprise of that of Alexander. After all, if it was meant to be Seleukos, why is it never used again? The suggestion that the horned horse is not Alexander's mount, but the swift horse that carried Seleukos away from Babylon in 315 BC, is equally unlikely because that horse is never said to have had horns and the fact that horned horse heads are often found on some eastern silver and bronze coins of Seleukos I and a few of his successors does not support that attribution. Those heads are surely of Boukephalos, especially since he died and was buried in the east. Clearly, the horseman on this coin is Alexander, conqueror of the East, in a pose very similar to that found on the so-called Poros Dekadrachms. He appears on this special issue for the same reasons he appeared on the series from Susa: to recall the deeds of Alexander in the past and associate them with those of Seleukos in the present. This is not only one of the most exciting and historically significant coins minted by the Seleukids, but it is also a particularly striking depiction of Alexander.

Rare “Egyptianizing” Antiochos IV Drachm

Antiochos IV Epiphanes. 175-164 BC. AR Drachm (18mm, 3.93 g, 12h). “Egyptianizing” series. Antioch on the Orontes mint. Struck circa 169-168 BC. Diademed head right within fillet border / ΒΑΣΙΛΕΩΣ ΑΝΤΙΟΧΟΥ ΘΕΟΥ ΕΠΙΦΑΝΟΥΣ, eagle, with wings closed, standing right on thunderbolt. SC 1404; Mørkholm 9 (obv. die a2) = Le Rider, Antioche 23-4 (obv. die A2); SMA 57; HGC 9, 627. VF, toned, light marks and scratches, flan crack. Very rare, perhaps only the third known example.

Ex Gemini IV (8 January 2008), lot 217.

This rare silver drachm is also part of the special issue that commemorates Antiochus’ return to Antioch after his second Egyptian campaign, and is part of the same issue as the “Egyptianizing” bronzes.

Hellenized Zeus with Archaizing Coiffure

Alexander I Balas. 152-145 BC. AR Tetradrachm (30mm, 16.73 g, 4h). Seleukeia in Pieria mint. Dated SE 166 (147/6 BC). Laureate head of Zeus to right, with full beard and with his hair arranged in long curls of archaizing form / ΒΑΣΙΛΕΩΣ ΑΛΕΞΑΝΔΡΟΥ, winged thunderbolt; above, ΞΡ (date) and ΒΔ; below, ΒΥ and Φ; all within wreath of grain ears with ties to right. SC 1798; Houghton, Tetradrachm, p. 153 (obv. die A1); HGC 9, 874; DCA 124 (this coin cited); CSE 409 (same obv. die). VF, toned. Very rare. One of approximately fifteen known examples, of which at least seven are in museums.

Ex Leu 71 (24 October 1997), lot 233.

This tetradrachm struck by Alexander Balas is among the most intriguing of the Seleukid series. Unlike the usual royal tetradrachm issues that dominate the series, this coin employs types that are directly related to the city in which it was struck. Seleukeia was well noted for its cult of Zeus Kasios, and there are also reports that a thunderbolt cult existed there (Appian, Syr. 58). Moreover, the idealized, Pheidian-influenced portrait of Zeus and the winged thunderbolt had been types struck on municipal bronze issues of Seleukeia from the establishment of the city under Seleukos I.

This novel issue is likely a reflection of the prominence of the city under Alexander. At the beginning of his reign, immediately following his overthrow of Demetrius I, Seleukeia was the first city in northern Syria under his total control. In contrast, Antioch refused to accept him, and struck a series of posthumous coins in the name of Antiochos IV. Without having control of the Antioch mint, Alexander was forced to begin striking coinage at Seleukeia, which had been only a peripheral mint in earlier reigns. Although there is no known event in SE 166 that would give rise to such a special coin issue, the purely civic nature of the types strongly suggests that the city retained a level of high prominence during the later years of his reign.

Ex Leu 50 (25 April 1990), lot 205.

This rare issue was struck to commemorate the marriage of Alexander I Balas and Kleopatra Thea in 150 BC, a union that politically united the Ptolemaic and Seleukid Empires. Previously thought to be a special emission of the Seleukeia in Pieria mint, based on the imagery of Nike holding a thunderbolt, it is now attributed to the Ptolemaïs (Ake) mint.

A military commander and leading supporter of the usurper Alexander I Balas, Diodotos placed Antiochos VI on the Seleukid throne following Balas' death. Two years later, upon the death of the young king, Diodotos took the throne himself, supposedly upon the acclamation of his troops. Unlike previous usurpers, Diodotos did not fabricate his lineage into the Seleukid house, but maintained that the Seleukid line had ended, and his was the beginning of a new era. He broke tradition by assuming the title autocrat rather than king, and took the name Tryphon ('the luxurious'). His reign proved very unpopular, and a new Seleukid claimant, Antiochos VII Sidetes, rose up against him. Within three years, Tryphon was defeated and killed.

This silver tetradrachm type, with a diademed head of a young Antiochos Epiphanes, is the only evidence of an uncertain king. It has been suggested that it is a very young Antiochos VIII, elevated to the throne by his mother Kleopatra Thea, but perhaps “the more logical choice may have been her older son by Antiochos VII (assuming he was still alive) rather than the future Antiochos VIII, a son of the detested Demetrius and a younger son at that.”

Unique Gold Stater of Alexander II Zabinas

Alexander II Zabinas. 128-122 BC. AV Stater (19mm, 8.47 g, 12h). Antioch on the Orontes mint. Diademed head right within beaded border / ΒΑΣΙΛΕΩΣ ΑΛΕΞΑΝΔΡΟΥ, Zeus Nikephoros seated left. Unique for issue, and possibly only one of two gold staters known for Alexander.

Ex Berk BBS 109 (20 July 1999), lot 11.

The authors of Seleucid Coins recount Justin’s narrative (39.2.5-6) of “how Alexander, defeated by Antiochus VIII and short of money to pay his remaining troops, looted the golden Nike from the statue of Olympian Zeus in the temple of Apollo at Daphne, before attempting to escape to Greece.” Babelon and Newell related this anecdote to the previously only known gold stater of Alexander II (SC 2215) with the “otherwise unattested epithets” of ΘΕΟΥ ΕΠΙΦΑΝΟΥΣ ΝΙΚΗΦΟΡΟΥ (God Manifest, Bearer of Victory).

The unique gold stater offered here, unknown to Babelon and Newell, “is a more plausible candidate to be associated with Alexander’s theft of the Nike statue. It should be noted, however, that Diodorus 34/35.28 alleges that Alexander was captured only two days after his temple robbery. If the account of Diodorus be preferred to that of Justin, there would be no time for the gold statue to be converted into coin.”

Unique Tetradrachm of Antiochos XI & Philip I

Antiochos XI & Philip I. Circa 94-93 BC. AR Tetradrachm (27mm, 16.04 g, 1h). Uncertain Cilician(?) mint. Jugate, diademed heads of Antiochos XI (foreground) and Philip I within filleted border / [Β]ΑΣΙΛΕΩΣ ΑΝΤΙΟΧΟΥ [Κ]ΑΙ ΒΑΣΙΛΕΩΣ [Φ]ΙΛΙΠΠΟΥ, Zeus Nikephoros seated left; uncertain letter or monogram above Φ, which is above an uncertain monogram to outer left, Φ below throne; all within wreath. SC 2438 (this coin cited); A. Houghton, "The Struggle for the Seleucid Succession, 94-92 BC: A New Tetradrachm of Antiochos XI and Philip I of Antioch" in SNR 77 (1998), pp. 65-9, pl. 12, no. 1 (this coin); HGC 9, 1297 (this coin illustrated). EF, toned. Unique.

Purchased from Numismatica Ars Classica, December 1998. Ex Triton II (1 December 1998), lot 484; Freeman & Sear FPL 5 (Spring 1998), lot E83.

Originally assigned to Antioch by Houghton in his SNR article, it was reassigned by the authors of Seleucid Coins to "Uncertain Cilician Issues," as the "style of the portraits and the form of the controls differ from those of Antiochos XI's sole reign in the Syrian capital." This unique tetradrachm is evidence of the chaotic civil wars between the five sons of Antiochos VIII, their uncle Antiochos IX and cousin Antiochos X.

Philip I Philadelphos. Circa 95/4-76/5 BC. AR Tetradrachm (25mm, 14.88 g, 1h). Posthumous issue under the Roman administration. Antioch on the Orontes mint.
